Working title of the project: „Healthy Life Hack 4 All”

General objectives:

Develop and advance person-centred, evidence-based and coordinated disease prevention and intervention solutions to support children’s and adolescents’ health and care in an increasingly digital society. The effectiveness of the intervention solutions will be evaluated, inter alia, in terms of health outcomes, (comparative) cost-effectiveness, implementation facilitators and barriers. The target group will include children and adolescents of up to 25 years of age from different socio-economic backgrounds.

Develop and integrate innovative, privacy-preserving tools and technologies such as (but not limited to) activity trackers, sensors, serious games, platforms and robotics, Massive Open Online Courses (MOOCs) in coordinated and integrated care models to help children and adolescents enjoy healthy, active and social lifestyles, to prevent diseases as well as to better monitor and manage their physical, social and mental health.

Selected projects under this topic are strongly encouraged to participate in joint activities as appropriate. These joint activities could, for example, take the form of clustering of projects and involve joint coordination and dissemination activities such as the participation in joint workshops, the exchange of knowledge, the development and adoption of best practices and adoption strategies on regional, national and European level.

Candidates for partners: only universities/institutions which previously were a leader/coordinator in the Horizon multi-partner project.
